Public Health Update The U.S. Food and Drug Administration along with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and state and local officials are investigating a multistate outbreak of B. cepacia infections linked to Medline Remedy Essentials No-Rinse Cleansing Foam. As of May 21, CDC reported 15 cases associated with these products.

The FDA is currently advising health professionals and consumers to avoid using products that have been recalled by Shadow Holdings dba Bocchi Laboratories, as these products may be contaminated with the bacteria Burkholderia cepacia complex (Bcc). The FDA is particularly concerned about potential contamination in recalled lots of Medline Remedy Essentials No-Rinse Cleansing Foam, since laboratory analysis by the FDA confirmed that samples of this product contained Bcc matches Bcc isolates collected from the Shadow Holdings dba Bocchi Laboratories facility and from ill persons. The matches were detected by pulsed field gel electrophoresis (PFGE), a type of DNA fingerprinting. Shadow Holdings dba Bocchi Laboratories has recalled other products made in the same location. This cleansing foam is a product used for skin and perineal care. It is used in hospitals and home-health care settings for people who are unable to shower or bathe after surgery or due to other acute health conditions. The FDA is particularly concerned about contamination in this product, since product instructions do not include rinsing the product from patient skin. Check to ensure your facilities are not using the recalled products.
